

Slash Bunting

NO SLASH BUNTING: A slash bunt is the act of squaring to bunt in order to move the infield and to distract the pitcher and then swinging away at the pitch.

Penalty: Batter is out and ball is dead, runners shall not advance.

Intent: To prevent injury of player or players moving in to make a play on bunted ball and getting hit with a batted ball or bat.

Note: Faking a bunt is legal as is pulling the bat back from a bunt stance, however taking a swing afterwards on the same pitch shall be illegal, and the call will be at the umpire's judgment. If the act is ruled a slash the batter shall be automatically out and no runners shall be allowed to advance.
